

Notes from the Chair

1988 marks the 10th year since SALIS was formed by a small group of librarians who met in Houston and recognized their need to network with others working in alcohol/drug libraries and information centers. I joined SALIS in its second year, and immediately felt the support and enthusiasm a network can provide. Since that first meeting, SALIS has developed into a vital, effective, professional organization with over 130 international members; we are more active than ever with a number of challenging projects which will ensure that SALIS continues to grow as an organization of leadership in the field of substance abuse information. Among the current projects are:

- collaboration with the World Health Organization and the U.S. Office for Substance Abuse Prevention in efforts to improve information access to "information poor" developing countries. Virginia Rolett is developing a "how to" manual for setting up an information service in developing countries; help from other SALIS members will be needed to complete the manual.
- development of a comprehensive thesaurus for the alcohol/drug field. Elva Yanez of the Prevention Research Center has written a position paper which documents the need for such a tool and proposes how it can be developed.
- participation in national conferences. The UC San Diego Symposium on Alcohol and Other Drug Resources (March 1988) featured several SALIS members as speakers and exhibitors, as did the National Council on Alcoholism meeting in April. Also at NCA, Andrea Mitchell hosted a breakfast meeting on behalf of SALIS which offered an opportunity to boost SALIS visibility and concerns among NCA members.
- throughout the summer, the Office for Substance Abuse Prevention is sponsoring a series of five regional workshops on communication and information; SALIS librarians will be participating at all of the workshops as faculty and exhibitors.

SALIS Conference '88

This year's conference (our tenth!) will be held in Seattle on October 18-20 with the theme High Risk Groups: Alcohol and Other Drug Information Resources. The focus will be on information resources for and about special populations, including minorities, youth, and others at increased risk for substance abuse problems. Drug abuse topics will be another area of emphasis, and there will be plenty of room in the program for other topics as well, so start thinking about your presentations! A call-for-papers and registration information will be mailed in June.

In addition to the regular conference, a one-day pre-conference workshop on searching for alcohol and drug information on-line will be offered on Monday, October 17. The workshop will include instruction and hands-on practice on the alcohol- and drug-specific databases (CORK, DRUGINFO, ETOH) as well as other databases relevant to alcohol and drugs. Registration information for this workshop will be included in the June mailing.

Letter to the Editor

Dear SALIS News Editor:

I understand that there has been some discussion of a name change for SALIS. This suggests a rethinking of the SALIS charter and mission. The name I have heard suggested is "Substance Abuse Leadership for the Information Sciences". However it seems to me that SALIS is a unique organization with a growing strength and special contribution to make in the substance abuse field. This would be watered down if SALIS attempted to take on broader issues and develop membership in areas outside the library/information sciences. That would be a mistake, in my view, because it would weaken the special expertise SALIS and its membership offer, while requiring expenditure of much energy on recruitment and expansion. Instead, I would suggest that the mission be, if anything, narrowed to concentrate on the key issues in the information sciences field and that increased credentials be required for membership. For example, perhaps a MLS or similar degree could be required for regular membership, with associate member status for individuals with degrees or credentials unrelated to library/information sciences. This would eliminate some current members (such as myself) from regular membership but I should think would have the effect of strengthening SALIS and enhancing its credentials.

With respect to a name and mission change then, I would suggest SALIS adhere to the maxim "if it ain't broke don't fix it".

Robert W. Denniston
Member, SALIS
Director,
Division of Communication Programs
Office for Substance Abuse Prevention

Penny Page and Virginia Rolett have already been to Maine for the first workshop; the others will be in Minneapolis, San Francisco (July), Atlanta and Austin, TX (September). SALIS was asked to present workshops on databases and other computer applications in an information center and an overview of alcohol/drug information sources.

The achievements of SALIS are products of the effort and talents of its members. As we enter our second decade, I encourage you to stay involved in the organization for the support, challenge, and yes, even fun that SALIS offers. I'm looking forward to the 1988 Conference in Seattle -- I hope many of you will be there. -- Nancy Sutherland, SALIS Chair

From the Editor

With this issue, Vol. 8, No. 1, there have been 21 issues of SALIS News under my editorship. It's time for evaluation and reassessment. For those of you who do regularly peruse this periodical, I would appreciate it very much if you would take the time to let me know what you do and don't like. Shall I continue with the reference sources and periodical news? Do you want more news about the SALIS organization, its members, their organizations? When we first started the newsletter there were plans for a regular column highlighting individual member organizations. The person responsible for that particular feature dropped out of SALIS. Is anyone interested in becoming a feature writer for such a column?

Several of you have continued to send me material for various issues and I really do want to thank you. Doug White from the Wisconsin Clearinghouse has continued to regularly send the film ratings, which I think are an important part of the newsletter judging by a few comments I have had. Nancy Sutherland, Ginny Rolett, Margy Chan, Penny Page, Bob Denniston, and Karen Roe have also sent numerous items, informational, humorous, and thought provoking. Thank you all!

Please do fill out the evaluation form on page 11 and give me your thoughts, comments, critiques -- so that SALIS News really will give you the kind of information you need. -- A. M.

Report on San Diego

The San Diego International Symposium on Alcohol and other Drugs Information Resources brought more than 130 people together to share information on networks, databases, epidemiological surveys, information technology/transfer and knowledge gaps.

Update on the Alcohol/Drug Thesaurus Position Paper

Elva Yanez
Prevention Research Center Library
2532 Durant Avenue
Berkeley, CA 94704
(415) 486-1111

On May 13, 1988, the position paper entitled "The Development and Construction of a Comprehensive Alcohol/Drug Thesaurus" was completed. It was submitted to Robert Denniston, of OSAP, whose office supported the development of the paper. Many thanks to the members of the Thesaurus Working Group for their contributions to the paper. Additional thanks go to those SALIS members who responded to the letter of January 10, 1988, requesting copies of in-house alcohol/drug vocabularies and references to other relevant thesauri, subject headings lists and vocabularies.

Essentially, the position paper provides the background and justification for the development of a comprehensive alcohol/drug thesaurus for use in indexing/cataloging and searching. Appended to the paper is a summary of the materials received from SALIS members in response to the aforementioned request. The following is the paper's executive summary:

"A comprehensive alcohol/drug thesaurus is needed to improve the indexing and retrieval functions of existing alcohol/drug libraries and other information storage and retrieval systems. Improved indexing and retrieval functions would result in better resource utilization and, thus, more effective products and services developed by the alcohol/drug field. Background is given regarding the alcohol/drug literature and its bibliographic control from the standpoints of lead agencies, existing collections and secondary sources. The role of the thesaurus is described and analyzed with regard to subject field, type of literature, quantity of language, language considerations, system users, the types of queries put to the system, and resources available. The need to construct a comprehensive alcohol/drug thesaurus is reinforced by the fact that existing alcohol/drug vocabularies do not provide the type of coverage now required by alcohol/drug information storage and retrieval systems. Recommendations are made regarding the development and construction of a comprehensive alcohol/drug thesaurus including design, standards, computerized techniques, project administration, staff and advisory panels."

It is hoped that the thesaurus development project proposed in the paper will be funded by the appropriate federal agencies. Further developments regarding the position paper and the proposed alcohol/drug thesaurus will be announced in the SALIS News.

Additional information and a limited number of copies of the paper are available by contacting me at the above address.

Anyone Going To ICAA?

At least one SALIS member will be in Oslo for the ICAA meetings in August, and would like to get together there to discuss SALIS work, plans and projects. If you are planning to go, please contact Nancy Sutherland, SALIS Chair, so that she may organize an agenda.

Many things have happened at ADFA over the past few months. Not the least of these was our move of locations: we're now in spacious new premises decorated a very fashionable dusty pink. It has taken at least six weeks numerous temper tantrums and considerable efforts to coordinate the efforts of removalists, builders, electricians, telephone and computer technicians. But it's all a bad dream now and we're finally fully operational.

Note our new address above.

The Australian thesaurus of alcohol and drug terms is in the last stages of development. There is considerable interest in the project here so we hope to be able to formally publish the thesaurus by (our) winter. Our database of drug and alcohol material now has over 1400 items on it; we're starting a major retrospective dump in the next month and then we'll have material from 1983 onwards indexed. The emphasis of the database will be sociological and psychological material rather than strictly medical. The coverage will include international as well as regional material.

Another major project we're tackling this year is the creation of a series of Australian bibliographies on substance abuse. This year we are publishing: Alcohol and Women, Alcohol and Aborigines, and Alcohol and Youth. These will be available from ADFA by July.

The links with South East Asia are slowly being established. An international organization is interested in enlisting ADFA's help in this and we're continuing talks with them. Our National Campaign Against Drug Abuse (NCADA) is ready and willing to send material overseas. They specialise in general information on Australian patterns of drug use. See SALIS Directory Updates, page 9 for address.

The Drugs of Dependence Branch of the Commonwealth Department of Community Services and Health also produce statistics, research and other publications. The contact is Mal Gibson, National Drug Abuse Information Service. See SALIS Directory Updates, page 9 for address.

Remember, if you have any queries you think we can help you with please don't hesitate to write, ring, or fax us a message.

Online and Database News

ETOH may be up and running as you read this column! Yes, the alcohol database produced by NIAAA since 1972 is now being loaded onto the BRS mainframe in Latham, New York and should be available for searching by -- ?. I'm not making any claims. But unofficial news is that a test file will be running by the end of June. And after some brief evaluation, ETOH will be available to anyone with access to BRS. In the last issue of SALIS News it was reported that coverage would include the years 1984 to the present. Correction: NIAAA has decided to load the entire file from 1972, which will include approximately 65,000 abstracts of the alcohol literature -- journal articles, books, government documents, reports, unpublished working papers, conference proceedings, etc. This indeed is a time to celebrate! More specifics -- search tips, database notes, to follow in future editions of SALIS News.

ETOH, by the way, is the chemical designation for ethanol and the four letter code word required by BRS to enter the Alcohol and Alcohol Problems Science Database (NIAAA official name).

Alcohol and Other Drug Databases on BRS are CORK and DRUG. Check the AID pages in BRS Documentation for more information or write the two main SALIS members involved in creating these databases -- Virginia Rolett (CORK) and Gail Weinberg (DRUG).

A new interdisciplinary guide to the literature which covers primarily sources on U.S. adolescents, with some references to international sources. Arrangement is by format type (dictionaries, encyclopedias, thesauri, comprehensive and subject bibliographies, directories, abstracting and indexing services, periodicals, statistics, organizations, on-line databases). Additional indexes provide access by author, title, organization and subject. All entries are annotated to indicate the scope, coverage and limitations of the tool listed; periodical listings include information on where they are indexed. The chapter on databases includes sample records. About forty well-chosen sources for drug/alcohol information are included.

This volume is thorough, up-to-date, and exceptionally well-conceived and executed; I recommend it for any library or research center which deals with adolescent information.

Goode, Polly T. Drug Abuse Bibliography for 1984. Troy, NY: Whitson Publishing, 1987, 729 p. ISBN 0-87875-322-2.

These two titles are numbers 13 and 14 in a series of annual supplements to Drugs of Addiction and Non-Addiction. Their Use and Abuse: A Comprehensive Bibliography 1960 - 1969, compiled by Joseph Menditto. Each is divided into four sections: books, monographs and pamphlets; title index to periodical literature; subject index to periodical literature; and an author index. A list of journals cited and a list of subject headings used is included.

The preface for each volume describes it as a "near complete bibliography of world literature surrounding drugs and drug abuse" for the year in question. While not complete, each volume covers quite a bit of the English language (not world) literature from many disciplines and diverse sources. Inadequate subject indexing is, not surprisingly, the weak point: too many synonyms and no cross references. Another complaint is that there are too many references to (non-abused) pharmaceutical drugs. On the good side, the format is easy to use.

Notes from the Chair

By now you should all have received registration materials for the 1988 SALIS Conference, to be held in Seattle on October 18-20. (If not, please contact me at the address below). Conference presenters will address the theme of Alcohol and Drug Abuse among High Risk Groups from several perspectives: research, information resources and access, and message development and dissemination. Our skills as "information retailers" are improved when we are more informed about current research and resources in the alcohol and drug field. And as always, an important feature will be the opportunity for informal exchange and to renew acquaintances with colleagues.

A few additions/clarifications regarding the conference program:

- Dr. Alexander Boros, Director of the AID Project (Addiction Intervention with the Disabled) will discuss the special problems of the physically and mentally disabled; Dr. Boros, editor of the AID Bulletin, has developed a variety of materials for and about disabled persons with substance abuse problems.
- Swinitha Nandanie Nawana, Librarian from the Alcohol and Drug Information Centre in Sri Lanka, will present a paper on youth and drug abuse in that country.
- Several others have submitted late abstracts; depending on further developments, we may run two concurrent sessions for part of the conference in order to allow as many as possible to participate.
- The Medical Library Association has granted continuing education credit (6.9 contact hours) for the Substance Abuse Database Workshop on Monday, October 17. The workshop will be aimed at experienced online searchers who want to gain more expertise with the alcohol and drug-specific databases. Space is limited, so please register as soon as possible for the workshop.

Computer Faire

Judith Lubina
Alcohol Research Group

The Office of Substance Abuse Prevention sponsored the Western Regional Communications Seminar which took place in San Francisco, July 18-20 with the topic Steppin' out into the community: Reaching the hard-to-reach to prevent alcohol and other drug abuse. This was one of five regional conferences focusing on communication and information. One component of the Clearinghouse/Database Track was "An Introduction to the Power of Computers in Managing Alcohol/Drug Information," otherwise known as the computer faire.

The presentations at the computer faire showed attendees how to set up a library or information center and provided practical experience with computers. SALIS members participated in the Clearinghouse/Database Track both by presenting papers and by conducting hands-on demonstrations.

During the presentations, Elva Yanez (Prevention Research Center) identified library components which were broad enough to be useful for both automated and manual centers. Elements included: different formats for materials such as reports, books, and reprints; how to order materials; and how to organize documents both intellectually -- classification systems -- and physically.

Nancy Sutherland (Alcohol and Drug Abuse Institute) discussed the technical side of online database access. She identified what equipment would be necessary, who the vendors are, and what the distinctions are between access methods, vendors and databases within vendor.

Caron Westland (UC Los Angeles) described the UCLA DAIMP Hotline -- and "how to put it all together" to serve the public through a public access bulletin board. The system includes lists of reference material on street drugs, AIDS, drugs and pregnancy, employment, drugs and AIDS in the workplace, as well as a prevention literature bibliography, an electronic mail system, general information, special events.

The hands-on portion consisted of demonstrations of information retrieval. Included were major computer bibliographic databases such as MEDLINE, PSYCH INFO, ERIC (Nancy Sutherland); and CORK, DRUG INFO, and ETOH (Leslie Fisher -- Prevention Research Center). People had the chance to search either by following a guide or their own interests. Also demonstrated were individual/organizational systems: DAIMP (Caron Westland), the Prevention Research Center in-house database on In-Magic (Elva Yanez), and an in-house rolodex on Enrich (Judith Lubina -- Alcohol Research Group). Participants wandered from one computer to another asking questions to see where and how these different applications would fit into their organizations.

- If it becomes necessary for you to cancel your registration, please contact me by October 10, 1988 to receive a refund. No refunds will be issued after that date. A $10 administration fee will be withheld for all cancellations.

Please note that only SALIS members who have paid their 1988 membership dues as of September 30, 1988 will be eligible to register for the conference at the member rate. All others will be charged the non-member rate. (Hint: there's still time to renew; send renewal forms and dues to Margy Chan, Membership Chair).

Don't be put off by Seattle's reputation as Rain City -- it's not exactly undeserved, but it doesn't stop anyone from having a good time! I hope you'll join us and agree.

Thinking About Drinking. Cambridge, MA: SoundDocumentaries, 1987, 12 half-hour audiocassettes. Producer: David Freudberg.

Reviewed by:

Barbara Yoder, author of the forthcoming Recovery Catalog (Simon & Schuster, 1989)

Originally broadcast on American Public Radio in the fall of 1987, these twelve 30-minute audiocassettes convey with clarity, objectivity, and style a lot of useful information on a complex subject. The range of interviews is impressive. We hear from people who drink as well as from those who never touch the stuff; from distillers and brewers as well as from alcoholism prevention and treatment specialists; from ordinary men and women who share their private stories of recovery as well as from famous individuals whose alcoholism and recovery are a matter of public record.

An alcohol researcher tells us that if alcohol were discovered today, the FDA would not approve it. A Wine Institute spokeswoman maintains that wine is not a drug, but "a food associated with moderate health practices." Former First Lady Betty Ford shares the story of how her family intervened on her behalf. And Massachusetts Governor Michael S. Dukakis, whose brother was killed by a hit-and-run driver, advocates tough laws while stressing his belief that most drunk drivers are alcoholics who need treatment.

Bill W. himself addresses us via an archive recording of a speech he made twenty years ago. And Lois W., 96 years old at the time of the interview, reads from her diary a passage of a time in the early 1930s before Bill got well, before Alcoholics Anonymous and Al-Anon were conceived. There is a lot of rich material here, and it's deftly presented.

The series juxtaposes facts about alcoholism against public perceptions and media images. In "The Magic Potion," which provides an overview of current drinking patterns in America, we hear a wine cooler ad jingle that cheerfully conjures a sad image: "It's fun! Get into the bottom of one!"

The series makes complex material easy to understand. In "The Terrible Trap," for instance, a physician tells us that "the hallmark of alcoholism is not how much you drink or how long you drink, but that you have trouble stopping."

The series is oriented toward recovery. Segments four and five, "The Road to Recovery" and "One Step at a Time," make an outstanding introduction to Alcoholics Anonymous. In the former, three recovering people share their stories, just as they might at an A.A. meeting. In the latter, A.A. members who were interviewed at A.A.'s fiftieth anniversary share their enthusiasm for the program that saved their lives. Their excitement is infectious. This segment also includes Bill W.'s address. The sixth segment, "A Family Disease," shows how alcoholism is passed from generation to generation and includes an interview with a nuclear family whose members are all in recovery. Interviews with Lois W. and Betty Ford are also on this tape.

Three segments explore issues relevant to particular populations. "The Lady Drinks" discusses the way in which women's physiology makes them more susceptible than men to alcohol problems; the practice of some doctors who, out of ignorance, prescribe tranquilizers to women alcoholics; and the horrible effects of fetal alcohol syndrome. "Latino Perspectives" reveals that, among minority groups, Latinos are second only to Native Americans in the severity of alcoholism, and that, because drinking is so heavily entrenched in the culture, treatment of Latinos tends not to occur until the disease has progressed to the late stages. "Teach Your Children Well" discusses the pervasive pressure on adolescents to drink, the consequences of teen drinking, and alternatives for teenagers who want to party without drugs.

Also included in this series are "Business and Booze," which provides an excellent introduction to employee assistance programs; "A Social History of Inebriation," which takes us from Colonial times, when more beer than water was consumed, through Prohibition; "Driving Under the Influence," which presents America's current alcohol policy; and "Media Images of Alcohol," which offers a broad range of images from literature, musical lyrics, film, television, and advertising.

Thinking About Drinking offers something for everyone. Its balanced, nonjudgmental view promotes clear thinking about a confusing and often misunderstood subject.

Packaged in a durable binder, the tapes come with a listener's guide that summarizes each segment and includes questions for discussion.

Bibliography Project

The demand for accurate information about AIDS and the HIV virus continues to grow. Yet, until the publication of AIDS and Substance Abuse, there had been no comprehensive treatment of the various legal, moral, and ethical issues which surround AIDS; especially as these issues relate to the treatment of HIV+ and AIDS-active clients in chemical dependency programs.

In this book, which was simultaneously published as a special issue of Advances in Alcohol and Substance Abuse (7.2, 1987), Dr. Siegel has collected essays from some of the leaders in the alcoholism/AIDS fields. Authors such as William Hawthorne, Ron Stall, Peter Selwyn, Melvin I. Pohl, Barbara G. Falz and Scott Madover address issues ranging from the impact of AIDS on the chemical dependency field to alcohol and other drugs as co-factors for AIDS and from whether chemical dependency programs should test for HIV to the role of substance abuse professionals in the AIDS epidemic.

Even more impressive than the essays themselves are the end notes which follow them. Readers interested in finding more information on one of the topics are supplied with a made-to-order reading list.

The Phillip Morris Magazine -- the tobacco industry's direct marketing approach, is being sent to 11 million non-paying readers according to the Wall Street Journal, August 4. And then there's Prosit -- the German Tipplers Cry of "May It Do Good!" and the new quarterly magazine aimed at the moderate drinker. Plans are to sell (50 cents per copy) Prosit at liquor stores with a projected national circulation of 300,000. According to the San Francisco Examiner, September 7, editor Catherine Wanner states "For most adults who choose to [drink], there is absolutely nothing wrong with healthy moderate drinking ... [this magazine ... "is about drinking, about having a good time, and about being healthy." According to the publisher, a retired alcoholic beverage wholesaler, there are no industry backers.

Reform is the title of a new newsletter from Narcotic and Drug Research, Inc., a private, not for profit organization devoted to substance abuse research training and technical assistance.

A major effort of this group is to advocate the utilization of effective drug treatment methods in prison. Funded by the Bureau of Justice Assistance, "Project Reform" or the Comprehensive State Department of Corrections Treatment Strategy for Drug Abuse currently involves six states, with a major aim to assist state departments of corrections to develop comprehensive institutional drug treatment to deal with drug offenders. The newsletter is designed to serve several purposes: "1) Report the progress of states participating in Project Reform, 2) Provide discussions of legislative issues that relate to substance abuse treatment for criminal justice clients and 3) Report on related topics that concern correctional administrators (e.g. AIDS). Notes from the Chair

Nancy Sutherland
Alcohol & Drug Abuse Institute

These notes will be brief since the Chair is still recouping from the 1988 SALIS Conference, held in Seattle last month! Several others are reporting on conference events in this issue of SALIS News, so I will just say that I thought the meeting was once again a success, and I sincerely thank all who contributed, as presenters, planners or lively participants. Special thanks goes to the Office for Substance Abuse Prevention for their generous assistance. In all, sixty-five people attended, including a number of SALIS members attending for the first time. A special guest was Jane Bemko, who founded SALIS ten years ago in Houston. Jane and Andrea Mitchell's presentation on "SALIS: Past and Future" helped us to keep in touch with our roots at the same time we move forward as individuals and as an organization.

One of my jobs in preparing for the future will be to draft a Strategic Plan for SALIS, with the help of the executive board and comments from SALIS members. Ideally the Plan will provide a guide for future decisions regarding SALIS policies and goals. More information about the Plan will be provided in the next issue of SALIS News.

Again, thank you to all who participated in the Seattle conference, and I hope to see you next year in Minneapolis.

SALIS Conference 1989

Mark your calendar for the 1989 SALIS Conference. Conference Chair Gail Weinberg has set the dates for October 30 -- November 2 at the Radisson Hotel in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Renew now for 1989!!

The SALIS Board has recommended a dues increase for the association in order to fund some of the many new projects that have been proposed and to further develop some of the already existing ones. At the business meeting the dues increase was discussed by attendees, along with the idea of the need for a strategic plan to put forth major goals and projects for the coming years. The Executive Board will be working on this plan over the next months and welcomes ideas, proposals, etc. from the membership. A letter outlining the plan and asking for a vote on dues increase will be mailed in early '89.

Anyone who renews before the dues are raised will pay the current fee of $25.00!!

SALIS Business Meeting

Celebrating our 10th anniversary was indeed an accomplishment felt by many at this year's SALIS Conference. The business meeting was lively, with many new attendees and several proposals for new projects. SALIS Chair, Nancy Sutherland, opened the meeting by highlighting some of the past year's activities.

- SALIS members participated in the planning and as faculty for the UC San Diego Alcohol and Drug Information Symposium
- SALIS members assisted in the planning and participated in the OSAP Regional Communications Seminars, which took place in five sites over the US this past year
- SALIS participated at the NCA national conference
- SALIS Executive Board met with Elaine Johnson, Director of OSAP, in San Diego, to discuss collaborative efforts concerning the database development and the thesaurus project

From the Canadian Special Interest Group, it was reported that a proposal for a national information system has been presented to the National Drug Strategy Task Force. Canadian SIG members of SALIS will be presenting in a workshop on Alcohol and Drug Information Resources in Canada at the national Action Conference on Drug Abuse, October, 1988.

Following on activities from last year's conference, Bette Reimer proposed a model for an international information system; a committee was formed to pursue further investigation. Virginia Rolett distributed an outline for the twinning program proposed at last year's meeting. A task force was set up to develop guidelines and a plan to implement the program.

An update on SALIS affiliation with ICAA was given by Bette Reimer. The SALIS Chair will write to the new president of ICAA, Stein Berg, to inquire regarding the type of affiliation which the Kettli Bruun Society has with ICAA, and whether SALIS may be able to affiliate in a similar way.

Cathy Weglarz reported on the Union List project, and several persons were recruited to assist in that effort. A serials exchange program was proposed, and Cathy volunteered to incorporate that project with the Union List.* Doug White of the Wisconsin Clearinghouse proposed the idea of a Bulletin Board for SALIS communications.* Tressa Youngbear suggested a new committee be formed in SALIS to work more on Education and Outreach issues.*

With the discussion concerning a SALIS dues increase, it was decided that a strategic plan is needed to further SALIS mission and goals (See Renew Now for 89). For a copy of the minutes, contact Margy Chan at Addiction Research Foundation.

SALIS Focuses on High-Risk Groups

Greg Austin

Southwest Regional Educational Laboratory

"High Risk Groups: Alcohol and Other Drug Information" was the subject of the annual meeting of the Substance Abuse Librarians and Information Specialists (SALIS), held in Seattle, Washington, October 17-20. The conference focused on current research, information resources, and media messages about special populations, including adolescents, ethnic minorities, pregnant women, gay men, impaired health-care professionals, and the disabled. Of particular interest was how information resources can be better used to address the needs of these often underserved groups.

In the keynote address, Elizabeth Wells of the School of Social Work, University of Washington, stressed that adolescents face a wide range of risk factors and that the substance abuse field should adopt a "risk factors approach" aimed at reducing factors that increase risk and increasing the protective factors that reduce risk. She has developed a Social Development Model which integrates risk factors. Research has indicated the importance of fostering prosocial behavior, increasing social bonding with the family and non-using friends, providing skills, and reinforcing positive behavior.

The Seattle Risk-Focused Prevention Program includes components devoted to parent training on how to deal with kids and schools, teacher training on classroom management and teaching techniques, and peer-focused training on cooperative learning and refusal skills, and an individual services component for referred high-risk students who are already experimenting. Alan Marlatt from the Addictive Behaviors Research Institute reported on his work with heavy drinking college students and Robin LaDue of the University of Washington's Pregnancy and Health Project gave an overview of what is known about FAS and FAE (fetal alcohol syndrome and fetal alcohol effects). According to Ms. LaDue, FAS and FAE are totally preventable.

Kevin McIntyre described the Children at Risk Project at the Wisconsin Clearinghouse, which seeks to identify not only correlates of abuse but protective factors which have generally been ignored. He stressed that too much high-risk research has focused on negative outcomes and not enough on understanding positive outcomes. What is the relative weight of high risk and protective factors on the individual level? Why do some children in high-risk families fail to develop any problems? Protective factors appear to include the ability to stand away from a troubled parent, a strong

SALIS Union List

Cathy Weglarz
Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies Library

A mailing was sent out to the general SALIS membership over the summer of 1988 -- the idea of a SALIS union list was proposed and prospective participants were invited to forward ideas and suggestions, as well as current journal holdings lists, to Cathy Weglarz at Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies Library. Response to this mailing was very light. Still, at the October 20 business meeting, the membership voted to continue work on a SALIS union list and Cathy was asked to lead a Task Force to this effort. Members of the Task Force are:

Steven Berg, National Association of Lesbian and Gay Alcoholism Professionals

Louise Hamel, Addiction Research Foundation

Judith Lubina, Alcohol Research Group

Elva Yanez, Prevention Research Center

A serials union list is a combined list of all the journals and serials held by a particular group of libraries; it should be updated regularly and is normally available to participating libraries with each update. Information usually includes a journal title and the listing of libraries who hold that title, with holdings information for each particular library (i.e. volumes and years). It is a valuable tool for inter-library loan procedures, reference questions and acquisitions problems.

SALIS is a uniquely focused organization, and the membership has decided to limit the scope of our union list to journal and serial titles specifically dealing with alcohol and/or drugs. Many of our members maintain subscriptions to more general periodicals, and there is no need to include most of these titles (unless they are particularly rare or useful) in yet another union list. An alcohol and drug specific list should have more value to the SALIS membership, as well as to other types of special libraries and information centers. We ask that you again consider the benefits of participating in this cooperative effort, and contact Cathy Weglarz or another member of the Task Force with questions or comments. The Task Force will be working throughout the year to develop procedures and policies, and interested members will be informed of progress. We hope to have the beginnings of a workable union list by the 1989 SALIS conference.

Education and Outreach: New Committee Formed

Tressa Youngbear
Iowa Substance Abuse Information Center

At the 1988 SALIS Annual Conference an Education and Outreach Committee was formed because several members of SALIS were concerned about getting current information out to the general public.

The committee will examine needs of both public and school libraries concerning alcohol and other drug information. It is anticipated that products will be developed such as: fact sheets, resource lists, core lists and pathfinders. Plans to establish networks for further communication and collaboration between SALIS, public libraries, school libraries, RADAR centers and NCADI are underway.

The following SALIS members volunteered to serve on this committee:

Tressa Youngbear, Committee Chairperson

Tessa Davis, Colorado Prevention Resource Center
Lisa Swanberg, National Clearinghouse for Alcohol and Drug Information

Nel Nadal, National Clearinghouse for Alcohol and Drug Information

Andrea Mitchell, Alcohol Research Group

Nancy Sutherland, Alcohol and Drug Abuse Institute

Bettina Scott, Office for Substance Abuse Prevention

Late in October the committee had the opportunity to meet in San Diego in conjunction with the Second National Conference on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism. Future projects were discussed and are in the early stages of development. The first project will consist of four basic pathfinders to target the following groups: reference librarians, adults, young adults, and children. Each pathfinder will include references with annotations on reference materials, books, journals, newsletters, films and audiovisuals, and organizations.

The committee will also be working towards publication in library journals as well as developing networks with and between public and school librarians and RADAR centers.

The committee would like to invite any SALIS member interested in this project to participate. Current plans include a rough draft of the pathfinders to be completed in late January. Please send suggestions, comments, or ideas to Tressa Youngbear no later than mid-December. The Education and Outreach Committee welcomes your valuable input!!

Youth and Drug Abuse in Sri Lanka

SALIS member Swinitha Nawana, formerly from the Alcohol and Drug Information Centre in Colombo, was unable to attend the SALIS Conference (because she moved to Australia), but she did send a paper titled "Youth and Drug Abuse in Sri Lanka."

Unfortunately, the paper arrived just after the meeting ended. Please contact me if you would like a copy.

Serials Duplicates Exchange

Cathy Weglarz
Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies Library

At the October 20 business meeting the membership decided to explore the idea of a serials exchange list for all interested SALIS members. Briefly, this involves a system where participating libraries identify gaps and single missing issues in their journal collection holdings -- and those gaps are filled at no charge by other SALIS members who may have duplicate copies of the item in question. Journal runs, that may have previously been discarded because of space limitations or weeding policies, can also be made available as entire volume sets to other libraries before discarding.

The Medical Library Association currently maintains a similar program which involves the exchange of duplicate journal lists among its participating members. Duplicate lists are forwarded to a central clearinghouse and rerouted to institutions; it is up to the individual libraries to make contacts for the actual exchange of the journals. There is a small fee involved which covers central coordination and mailing cost, and participants are asked to reimburse each other for postage on a cooperative level. This program is now successful on a national scale. Cathy Weglarz at Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies Library, has volunteered to attempt to coordinate the SALIS effort.

This will be a convenient and inexpensive way to utilize our combined resources, and an additional benefit of SALIS membership. Guidelines and costs for the program have not been set up yet, but will be forwarded to any interested individuals at such time. Please contact Cathy Weglarz if you are interested in participating in a trial serials exchange program.

self concept and internal locus of control, skepticism about the parental world view, and at least one good parental relationship. It is also evident that risk is not a constant, but episodic and fluctuating, with different life events and stresses.

A frequently voiced theme was that, when it comes to substance abuse, risk is a relative factor and we are all at some risk. Dow Lambert of the American Indian Research Center in Seattle observed that in some ways there are no groups which cannot be seen as a special population with special needs. The challenge is determining where the emphasis on special needs should lie.

Delores Wisdom described the Girls Clubs of America's Friendly Persuasion Program, a national peer-approach prevention effort targeted at girls aged 16-18. Two-thirds of Girls Clubs' members are lower-class, high-risk youth.

Other presentations dealt with the unique problems of developing culturally appropriate messages, particularly given the diversity within many ethnic groups, of overcoming communications barriers with people for whom English is a second language or with reading, hearing, or mental impairment.

Bettina Scott, from OSAP, stressed the need to overcome the gap between what the researcher says and what the practitioner needs and does.

SALIS to Explore Electronic Bulletin Board

Doug White
Wisconsin Clearinghouse

Will electronic information sharing improve communications among SALIS members? What are the advantages and obstacles to developing a SALIS electronic bulletin board? These were among the questions raised by Douglas White and Kevin McIntyre at the 10th Annual SALIS Conference in Seattle.

Many members responded very positively to the suggestion that SALIS explore electronic communications in general and bulletin boards in specific. Many perceived the need to improve communications among members and saw a SALIS bulletin board system (BBS) as an effective next step.

One result of the business meeting is the formation of a SALIS Electronic Bulletin Board System Task Force. Members include:

Catherine Freel, Alcohol Epidemiologic Data System

Lisa Swanberg, National Clearinghouse for Alcohol and Drug Information

Doug White, Wisconsin Clearinghouse

The task force will survey the membership about their needs, explore the issues surrounding a SALIS BBS, and develop a report for the Executive Committee. If you are interested in working with this group please contact Doug White at (608) 263-6886.

One option the Task Force will explore is use of the existing BBS, Quick Facts, operated by the Alcohol Epidemiologic Data System. The Quick Facts User's Manual is available from:

Fred Stinson

Quick Facts, CSR Inc.

1400 Eye Street, NW

Suite 600

Washington, DC 20005

(202) 842-7600

SALIS members are encouraged to use Quick Facts by dialing their modems to (202) 289-4112; required modem settings are:

8 data bits

1 stop bit

no parity checking

full duplex (or local echo off)

A "SALIS News" section is available in the public messages section to leave material for members.

Electronic communications offer many opportunities to improve information sharing among SALIS members. BBSs are fast, easily updated, easily accessible and cost effective. They can store large volumes of information, sort information at many levels and control access to information in various stages.

A SALIS BBS promotes our goals. It encourages the free flow of information among many users to help create a true communications network. A BBS promotes cooperation and shared responsibility for communications. It also facilitates the development of skills and technologies libraries and clearinghouses can employ to reach more users. A SALIS-sponsored BBS provides a visible product and service that would promote and strengthen our organization.

There are many ways to learn about BBSs. For a starter article see "Setting Up a Library BBS: A Step-by-Step Guide", by Gene Williams and Chris Mitchell, Wilson Library Bulletin, February 1987, pp. 12--15. Try a local BBS; most computer stores have their phone numbers. Call Quick Facts and leave or read messages.

An electronic bulletin board system is an important tool most of us will use in the years to come. Now is the time for SALIS to explore our electronic options to improving communications.

OSAP Announcement

The Office for Substance Abuse Prevention (OSAP) is launching a nationwide campaign to identify exemplary programs for the prevention of alcohol and other drug problems.

The search for exemplary programs will be conducted for OSAP by the National Association of State Alcohol and Drug Abuse Directors (NASADAD) and its affiliate, the National Prevention Network (NPN) to whom nominations should be addressed. Selection criteria include 1) the presence of clear nonuse messages for youth, and 2) the promotion of abstinence or low-risk use of alcohol by adults.

Community organizations will be asked to submit materials describing their prevention program to State alcohol and drug agencies or to national organizations participating in the study. Each State or national organization will then select up to four programs using a rating scale provided by NASADAD/NPN. The same rating scale will be used by members of the NASADAD/NPN Advisory Panel who will select the final programs to be honored. Self nominations are encouraged.

Notes from the Chair

Nancy Sutherland
Alcohol & Drug Abuse Institute

It's official: SALIS has been accepted as an international research group recognized as an affiliate of the International Council on Alcohol and Addictions. ICAA is the largest multi-national group in the addictions field, with a mandate of fostering international contact, cooperation and transfer of knowledge in the field of alcohol and drug dependence. As an affiliate, SALIS remains completely autonomous, though we will have the opportunity to collaborate with ICAA and its member organizations on information and other issues.

SALIS members Bette Reimer and Andrea Mitchell (among others) are hoping to deliver papers at the ICAA conference in June near Paris. While at ICAA, Bette and Andrea will try to meet with librarians and others interested in the library/information field; if any other SALIS members are also planning to attend, please let me know so that a meeting of SALIS (and friends of SALIS) could be organized during the ICAA sessions.

SALIS will also be represented at the National Council on Alcoholism Annual Forum in Atlanta, April 27-30. In addition to a panel presentation titled "Professional 'Secrets' of Finding Answers to Questions about Alcohol and Other Drugs," SALIS will be demonstrating online searching of BRS databases at our exhibit booth. If you are going to be at NCA, be sure to stop by the exhibit booth; I also hope you'll join me at the SALIS table during a Council of the Field Breakfast on Saturday morning.

As Chair, I'm often asked to suggest or recruit SALIS members to work on various SALIS projects, or projects with outside organizations (such as the World Health Organization, the Office for Substance Abuse Prevention, and others). Projects may be consulting, writing a position paper, doing a training workshop or serving on an advisory group. (continued page 2)

Membership Dues

Remember, if you haven't renewed your SALIS membership by April 1, 1989, this issue of SALIS News may be your last. If you need a membership form, see earlier issues of Volume 8. A list of members will be published in the next issue.

SALIS Conference

A reminder that the SALIS 11th Annual Conference, hosted by Gail Weinberg and the Drug Information Services, will take place October 30 - November 2 at the Radisson University Hotel in Minneapolis. The Conference Committee will meet at the end of April to discuss theme topics and the call for papers. Contact Gail Weinberg if you have any suggestions to make.

Andrea Mitchell
Alcohol Research Group

In late November of last year I visited Delhi, India to explore some of the information needs regarding alcohol and other drug problems and to introduce SALIS to researchers, doctors, and information professionals. Dr. R. P. Kumar, Director of the Medical Library at the All India Institute of Medical Sciences, and Dr. Davin Der Mohan, Director, Psychiatry Department of AIMS Institute were two of my hosts, and provided me with hours of their time and expertise on this subject. Additionally, I attended the two day conference on Alcohol Abuse: Problems and Policies, where discussions with researchers provided more on their information needs, and the difficulty of getting materials.

In a meeting with the Director of the Ministry of Health, I was informed that medical libraries have just begun to increase their collection development efforts in the area of alcohol and other drugs. However a visit to the Social Sciences Documentation Center, the Supreme Court Judges Library, and several medical libraries, made it apparent that very little material on this subject is being acquired.

The AIMS Library, as a support to some of the major alcohol/drug research projects in India, had the largest collection of alcoholism and drug materials in Delhi. In this issue please note the entry from the AIMS Library in Delhi and the Library and Information Center of the National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences in Bangalore.

Some of the projects include financial compensation; all provide opportunities for professional development and to make a contribution to our field.

In thinking of who to suggest for these positions, I rely on whatever personal knowledge I have of the interests and particular skills of individual SALIS members, with additional advice from the SALIS Board and by using the Directory. Unfortunately, this method can leave out talented persons who might be eager to participate but who are not as active as they might be if their interest and availability were known. The other result is that too often the same group of people are called upon to work on every project.

To help remedy that situation, I'm asking you all to let me know via the enclosed survey form about your interests and availability for working on extra projects. I know that our membership has many untapped talents which will be needed as SALIS moves into a more prominent and active role in both the addictions and information fields, so don't be modest - let us know what you'd like to do!

Community Planning Study

Many community planning manuals and guides have been created to assist local groups and agencies in establishing local alcohol/drug prevention policies and programs. The Office for Substance Abuse Prevention (OSAP), the Alcohol Research Group, and CLEW Associates, Berkeley, are beginning a study to analyze how these manuals and guides are being used at the community level.

The first part of this three part study will be to conduct the literature search and access the materials. Given that these types of documents are generally "fugitive" literature, we are requesting help from SALIS members who may be able to identify and/or provide examples of such materials from their own collections. We are interested in materials which concern tobacco as well as alcohol and other drugs.

Parts two and three of this study will include the organization and cataloguing of this material, the creation of a bibliography and reference guide for use in local prevention planning activities, and a final critical review of the applications and planning processes in which these manuals were employed.

Should you know of any such materials or have suggestions for the identification process, please write to:

Duplicates Exchange

If at first you don't succeed... Do any of you have duplicate journal volumes? Have you ever wondered how you might give that extra copy to the person who just happens to be missing that volume? Are you perhaps missing an issue of International Journal of the Addictions and don't want to have to pay $57 for a replacement (single issue, $114 combined)?

At the SALIS conference last November Cathy Weglarz of Rutgers volunteered to explore the idea of a serials duplicate exchange for SALIS. What she needs now is a note or a call to let her know that you are willing to send her a list of duplicates you'd like to give away. Please contact:

US Department of Education. Drug prevention curricula: A guide to selection and implementation.

According to the Department of Education's recent report to Congress on drug prevention education, "There is little evidence to challenge the basic premise that prevention is the most humane and cost effective response to drug and alcohol abuse and related problems." Given this, the Department of Education has recently put out this new guide to assist local areas in determining how to identify, evaluate, and utilize appropriate curricula. "A strong school policy against substance abuse -- clearly articulated, consistently enforced, and broadly communicated -- is the foundation upon which any program should be built" is the opening to the section on Policy: The Driving Force. The section on the curricula includes material on "the message" -- no alcohol, drug or tobacco use will be tolerated -- and the basic knowledge, values and actions of a good prevention curriculum for grades 4-6, 7-9, 10-12.

Also included are sections on how to support the curriculum via administrative leadership, faculty training, and parent/community involvement, reaching the entire student population, evaluating results, and the selection process. Available from:

NIDA Division of Epidemiology and Statistical Analysis and NIAAA Division of Biometry and Epidemiology. February 1989. 11 pp.

They've changed the name again -- but this is the major survey on alcohol and drug treatment (both private and public) in the U.S. The point prevalence of October 30, 1987 had a total of 8,690 facilities reporting with 614,123 clients in treatment on that day. Other data include environment/type of care and modality, client demographics: sex, age, race/ethnicity, facility location, i.e. hospital, correctional facility, community mental health center, etc.; financial support for treatment services and ownership: public (federal, state or local) or private (non-profit or for profit).

Bibliography -- Homeless

Ridge, M. Susan, Caroline T. McNeil and Howard H. Goldman. Alcohol and Other Drug Abuse Among Homeless Individuals: An Annotated Bibliography, Rockville, MD: National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, 1988 37pp.

This is a bibliography which was prepared for the grantees of the Community Demonstration Grant Projects for Alcohol and Drug Abuse Treatment of Homeless Individuals. Oddly enough, Medlars, Psych Info, Drug Abuse and CHAMP (a database on the issue of Homelessness) were cited as resources with no mention of ETOH, the NIAAA Alcohol Science database! However, the bibliography contains approximately 150 cites, and although not all are annotated, they are arranged by useful subject categories such as historical perspectives: early general studies, early survey studies; ethnographic, clinical and treatment studies; population characteristics: survey studies (reviews, state and national surveys, local surveys); population characteristics: special population (homeless women, homeless mothers and their children, persons with dual diagnoses); service research, and methodology.

Marin Institute for the Prevention of Alcohol and Other Drug Problems

Substance abuse index and abstracts: An international guide to the alcohol, drug and tobacco research, 1986-1987. 5 volumes. New York: Scientific DataLink, 1989. $720.00.

The publication of this five volume reference work provides strong evidence of the need for substantive reference tools covering the alcohol/drug literature. When the Journal of Studies on Alcohol suspended its abstracting service in 1982, a void was left with regard to the bibliographic control of the international alcohol literature. The development and commercial availability of alcohol/drug related bibliographic databases, such as the ones produced by Drug Information Services, the U.S. Office on Smoking and Health, Project Cork and NIAAA, alleviated some of the problems resulting from the lack of a single, comprehensive secondary source covering the international alcohol and other drug use literature. The publishers of the Substance Abuse Index and Abstracts describe this reference set as filling that void. Theoretically, it does; however, this reference work has some basic problems with methodology, design, layout and content that must be rectified before it can be considered a practical solution to the aforementioned problem.

The methodology employed by most indexing and abstracting services, such as Psychological Abstracts, Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature and the like, involve direct acquisition of specific source journals, original indexing, and, in many cases, abstracting. Rather than follow this standard methodology, the publishers of the Substance Abuse Index and Abstracts (SAIA) utilized the collections of two major libraries as the source of their references. Despite the comprehensiveness of these collections, it is very likely that the coverage is not complete since library collection development techniques tend to be selective by nature. The publishers give no indication of the selection criteria employed by either staff of the two libraries. Similarly, the abstracts provided in the work are only those provided by the author or taken from the libraries' references. Again, coverage is not complete in this important aspect of the work. Finally, with respect to coverage for the time period indicated by the title, it is apparent from the limited number of references from 1987 that coverage is incomplete for that year.

The references have been provided with original indexing utilizing a thesaurus developed specifically for this project. Standard thesaurus conventions showing the hierarchical relationships between terms (e.g. BT for broader terms) are employed. Like any thesaurus or controlled vocabulary, this first edition needs to be critically reviewed by an editorial board and changes made.

The SAIA is composed of five volumes. Volumes 1 and 2 contain the thesaurus and the subject index. Volume 3 contains the author and title indexes. Volumes 4 and 5 contain the 6,000 plus references, many of which have abstracts. In the subject index each entry following a subject descriptor is composed of an accession number and its corresponding title. As a user aid, the accession number is preceded by a three letter code to indicate whether the document deals with alcohol, drug or tobacco and each accession number is preceded by either "86" or "87" to indicate the year of publication, e.g. ALC87-0705. These codes make the use of the subject index somewhat more efficient. A serious problem with the subject index is the fact that the subject descriptors are not placed as headers on each page. Consequently, when there are numerous entries -- sometimes going on for pages at a time -- following a major descriptor, one cannot easily determine what descriptor the entries correspond to. One must flip the pages back and forth to verify the pertinent subject descriptor.

Volume 3 contains the author and title indexes. Very few indexing and abstracting services provide title indexes because they are not particularly useful in relation to the additional cost factors involved in their production. The author index provides the full title and accession number for each and every author cited in a reference. The publishers could have saved on labor and printing expenses had they simply provided full index information for the first author and standard cross references from secondary authors back to the first author.

The fourth and fifth volumes contain the abstracts. The entries provide the accession number, title in bold-face print, followed by the authors' names, publication date, source information and pagination. The subject descriptors used for indexing each reference are also given, followed by the abstract, if any. The abstracts are arranged in two major groupings for the two years covered by SAIA, 1986 and 1987, and then in strict accession number order. This type of arrangement is problematic. A strict accession number arrangement prevents the ability to "browse" through the references. Many indexing and abstracting services organize their references under broad subject categories which pro-notes efficient use of the tool by library patrons. Organization of references in accession number order is generally found in computerized databases where efficiency is regained by providing a number of different access points and powerful search capabilities.

Despite the problems involved with SAIA, the fact remains that the field lacks a single comprehensive indexing tool covering the entire alcohol and other drug literature. The effort made by the Scientific DataLink in publishing this first edition is laudable; however, many changes are in order to make this tool more usable and comprehensive. The idea of an editorial board composed of SALIS members makes sense only if that board can be involved from the very beginning of the design phase up through to final production.
